

Allowing consumers to keep their numbers when they change telephone service providers is necessary for competition in a free market. A market where a consumer is NOT penalized for changing to another service provider.